Re Item IV

Lack of unity of invention see explanation under item V.

Re Item V

Reasoned statement under Rule 66.2(a)(ii) with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement

The modification of lipolytic enzymes by linking one or more hydrophobic groups to said enzyme is disclosed in several of the prior art documents cited in the search report (all documents categorized x cited in the search report e.g Proceedings of the 20th European Peptide Symposium, 4-9 September 1998, meeting date 1988, 667-9, VAN BINSBERGEN JAN et al., Editors GUENTHER JUNG, ERNST BAYER, 'Peptides 1988', pages 667-668. XP002931955. D2:'Transesterification of oil by fatty acid-modified lipase','MOTOTAKE MURAKAMI ET AL.','JAOCS',",70/6/00-00-1993,571-574).

Therefore none of the generally drafted claims fulfils the requirements of Articles 33.2 PCT.

Should the applicant intend to file an amended set of claims which shall be suitable to overcome the objections above, the following additional considerations should be taken into account:

Especially in view of the prior art, a meaningful identification of the contribution over said art must be accompanied by a clear characterisation of the parent enzyme and the kind of modification. In the absence of precisely characterising said enzyme especially definitions as can be found in e.g. claim 2 are totally meaningless (Article 6 PCT).

In addition, the maintenance of various alternatives (either in one claim or in several independent claims) will most probably give rise to objections for lack of unity (again in view of the prior art) (Rules 13.1-13.3 PCT).

Moreover, any "modified lipolytic enzyme" to be maintained in the claims should be accompanied by experimental results in order to substantiate a possible inventive activity.
